COYA Monte-Carlo returns for its 4th season A culinary journey to (re)discover from 22 April

Monte-Carlo Société des Bains de Mer is continuing its promise to provide its customers with unique experiences whilst ensuring their well-being in these unusual times. At lunchtime on 22 April 2021, COYA Monte-Carlo is kicking off its 4th season, before switching to lunch & dinner mode starting on 23 April. COYA Monte-Carlo is opening its terrace with sea view in a new luxuriant setting. This season's big news: chef Victoria Vallenilla Gallardo is taking over the kitchens of COYA Monte-Carlo, bringing her Venezuelan and Caribbean influences with her.

(Re)discover COYA Monte-Carlo from 22 April 2021

Until we are allowed to travel again, get ready to set off on a journey of Latin American flavours and colours at COYA Monte-Carlo from Thursday 22 April at midday. A unique culinary journey from the terrace tucked away in the gardens of Sporting Monte-Carlo, far from everything and yet so close to it all, facing the sea, in a setting that has been redesigned by the COYA Monte-Carlo teams. A season that gets under way at lunchtime, until it's time for the evening meal.

COYA Monte-Carlo and its kitchens are now orchestrated by chef Victoria Vallenilla

Victoria Vallenilla is taking over the controls of the fusion restaurant, bringing her Venezuelan inspirations with her. Originally from Venezuela, Victoria Vallenilla learned the "Monte-Carlo" style of cooking at Hotel Hermitage Monte-Carlo for three years, before embarking on the COYA Monte-Carlo adventure with the opening of the restaurant, driven by her desire to return to her roots and to magnify the flavours of her childhood. This talented chef with a big smile has evolved from Sous-Chef to Chef, adding a modern and flavoursome touch to the restaurant's cuisine.
